EASTER WINGS.

A shower of roses on a happy head From fields far away, the winter day Gave a sweet smile to the
"And shall we go?"
We said
How bright
Then, when the sun shined Long had it passed from sight
When, again, the sun shined on the withered leaf, Several golden wings and fluttered into light.
So I have to fly - I'm in the sun's power, In the sun's power - "Ah, this Is a very perfect flower, The flower of life."
And I know
That deep
The golden wings
Earth fades, then opens, heavenly wings
And this is love, I have to go to keep

DID SUN AND MOON DANCE?

BY F. R. BURTON.

"Did your mamma
never tell you that,
Elsie, the sun and moon dance together, the last of them, on Easter morning?" Oh! oh!
what a shame it is, it is! Might be she never heard of it, for there was a heap of innocent ignorance in America waitin' to be put in the stove and burnt up like a pack of peat, so it is. Fast, an' I think the most beautiful things is Irish, so an'
I do."

"But really, Maggie," and little Elsie's blue eyes were wide with wonderment, really and truly, does the sun dance with the moon on Easter morning?"
"What would be tellin' ye for if it wasn't so at all? They do in Ireland; just as sure as the blissid sun comes up drippin' out as the say, lavin' out England to the dark, leadin' to her! The moon runs hoppy skip across the sky an' joins hands with the sun, an' they dance a rale Irish jig together."

"That must be dreadfully funny," said Elsie gravely, then, a fast doubt fingering in her puzzled thoughts, "Did you ever see them, Maggie?"

"See them, it is? Oh, oh! run away, now, to yer mamma an' sister, axin' me botherin' questions. Don't I tell ye it's not? What more do ye want, I dunno?" Elsie put her little finger in her mouth and walked slowly and with abstracted gaze into the sitting room where her mother sat sewing and her father was reading the evening paper. She sat down upon a low stool under the mantle and studied the brown and yellow tints of the carpet. In the soft light of the big lamp on the center table the brown seemed darker than it did by daylight, and the yellow was almost white.
Elsie wondered vaguely whether the yellow moss would be white during the dance with the sun, for she remembered that whenever it appeared to day it was usually pale, and would the sun turn his dazzling face aside for just one minute so that she could have a good look at him? and would the moon have feet and would the sun's legs go right down from the great, hot circle of flame, or would there be a body like papa's or would both, and this seemed more likely, would both just sit from side to side and laugh in each other's face before they resumed their regular dance?

It was strangely interesting to the eight-year-old, and in happy reflection she forgot all about the old figures in the new carpet. The bronze clock above her head began to buzz with a muffled importance, and then uttered a single ring and went on ticking harmlessly, as if in haste to reach the next hour mark, when its buzzing should prelude a more significant announcement. All well regulated clocks are subject to this vanity; they nod and the clocks of their faces, rattle away as all their precious insides were failing to press, the pendulum is silent, and then the contrivance ends with a few silver strokes, more or less, after which the timepiece recovers its modest self possession and goes on about its usual business.

"Half past six," said Mrs. Durant, glancing up at the clock. "Time little girls were in bed."

"Mamma," exclaimed Elsie, taking a peek in her dress with her fingers and looking hard at her feet, "mayn't I sit up all night, just this once?"

"Mercy on us!" cried Mrs. Durant, laying her sewing down in her lap, "what does the child mean?"

Papa Durant looked inquiringly over the top of his paper.

"I want to see the sun and the moon dance together," replied Elsie, "and I can't wake up early enough if I go to bed."

"I WANT TO SEE THE SUN AND MOON DANCE."

Mamma Durant was too astonished to speak, but papa with an amused smile said:

"You would have your trouble for nothing, Elsie, the sun and the moon can't indulge in such antics."

Elsie did not understand her father's words exactly, but she felt the denial and she responded:

"Mamma says they do every Easter morning, when the sun comes out of the sea, and the moon hops, skips and jumps, and they take hands and dance in the sky, at least in Ireland, the both of them, and perhaps, if I just sat up all night, they'd do for me. Please, papa."

Papa laughed.

"If you sat up, little one," he said,
"you would not be awake in the morning to sing with the other children in the Easter festival. You wouldn't like to miss that?"

"I think I'd rather see the dance," responded Elsie.

"Mamma shouldn't put such notions in little girls' heads," said mamma, and forthwith Elsie was banished to bed.
Her lips pouted with something more than affection when she kissed her father good night, and two or three boneless toes rolled slowly down her face, but she went to her room without a murmur.
And when her head was on the pillow she looked out at the stars and wished something would keep her awake. Her father had reassured her doubts as to the entire truth of Maggie's story, but it would have taken much more than that to convince her, for the event was too interesting not to be believed, and she was more than willing to see for herself whether it was so.

As she lay wondering about it all a thought suddenly sprang into her head.
Why should she not stay awake and see the dance? Papa and mamma had not said that she must not, and they would not care very much when she told them at breakfast what she had done. This thought became a fixed determination, and for several minutes she looked at the stars steadily with open eyes. Then she caught herself if dozing and she sat up in bed. Even in this attitude her head suddenly drooped, and she got out and stood in front of her half opened window. Across the road a street lamp made fantastic shadows of the trees and houses, and far away a dog barked.

From the room below came the clear, high tones of her mother's voice and the deep, sonorous murmur of her father's replies. Mellow sounds from the top of the little hill back of the house told that the church clock was striking 9. How slowly the time passed for Elsie! She looked up again at the stars and thought how tired the angels must get watching through the dark silence of every night.
Then somebody walked rapidly by, and when she could no longer hear his footsteps she wondered if it were nearly 10 o'clock. At last it grew chilly and she climbed into bed again, just for one minute, to get warm.

The evening had grown old for country folk before Mrs. Durant put aside the work that had lain idle in her lap for

THERE WAS THE MOON.

many minutes, and followed her husband to his chamber. Her thoughts had gone back to a happier time when her son Willie was with her. Only five years ago, and how long it seemed! He had yielded to a restless disposition and wandered away, where she knew not except that it was widely reported that he had shipped aboard an East Indian man.
If he were alive he would be nearly 20 now, but no word from or about him had ever been received. He had been absent a year when his parents sought to overcome the depression that grew upon them by leaving their former home and establishing themselves in a pretty country village where this story finds them.

Mrs. Durant said nothing to her husband of her curious grief, and before she slept she had relieved her aching heart by thoughts of Elsie, upon whom she poured forth all of a mother's yearning affection.

Elsie started. There was a flood of soft light in her room, and the stars that had shone so clearly into her window were almost invisible. She sprang from her bed with a great fear at her heart.
Was it day? No, there was the moon smiling at her and making the whole mysterious. How had the moon come around the house corner so quickly? Had she been asleep? The street lamp had been put out. It could not be more than a minute since she snuggled her toes under the blankets, and yet - It must be near morning, and intent on being out in time for the dance she hastened to put on her clothes. She would go up to the church at the top of the hill. There she could see all of the known world except that vague confusion of some far off town where papa used to live.

With care not to awake anybody, Elsie crept down the back stairs, drew back the bolt of the kitchen door, cautiously opened it and stepped out. Everything was wonderfully still, as if the earth was holding its breath in expectation of the heavenly dancers to occur at daybreak. Neither the stillness nor the night itself had terrors for Elsie. She walked quickly across the yard and through the sleeping orchard beyond to the low wall that bounded the church yard. Over this, and presently she stepped upon the shadow of the steeple.
The moon was on the other side of the church wall, or Elsie might have seen that it was not a few minutes past midnight.
Entirely satisfied with her adventure thus far, she sat down upon the church steps to wait.

Then for the first time she saw that she had been followed. Noiselessly stepping across the grass came that, the family cat, who was fast outgrowing the staidness of her name. Elsie welcomed her and rose to pick her up, whereat the cat scampered away, tail to air.

"Naughty pussy! come here," cried Elsie, and ran after her. In the orchard the cat disappeared, but hearing a slight noise below, Elsie went softly forward intent on taking her pet by surprise. Arrived at the gate to the yard she paused and looked about. What was her surprise to see a man cutting with a large pocket knife at the eave of the kitchen window! For a moment she looked on in wonderment, but when the man had cut away the fastening and was carefully raising the window, she exclaimed:

"That's my papa's house!"

Like a flash the man turned around and looked across the yard. His hand still on the half raised window.

"Huh! it's a kid," he muttered, and he let the window down and walked over to Elsie.

"What are you doing here, young one?" he asked in a whisper.

"I'm going to see the sun and the moon dance in the morning," replied Elsie, and you mustn't speak out loud or you'll wake papa and mamma and they'll make me come in."

The stranger smiled.

"I won't disturb 'em," he said. "I won't go to bed. The fact is, little one, I'm hungry, and all I was going to do in your house was to find something to eat."

"How do you know where the pantry is?" asked Elsie.

"I don't, but I guess I could find it.
You know, I suppose? Can't you get me a bit of bread or something?"

Elsie thought a moment. She remembered how no bigger ever went hungry from her father's door, and without reflecting further she crept into the house and as she went in the stranger muttered:

"And to think that the door was unlocked all the time!"

When Elsie returned she brought a half loaf of bread and a doughnut, a luxury of which she was especially fond.
The stranger fell upon the bread raven-ously and Elsie watched him in silence for a moment. Then she asked:

"Where do you live?"

"Nowhere."

This seemed so strange to Elsie that she said nothing more. The hungry man ate every morsel of the food and then put his face in his hands.

"I'm much obliged to you," he whispered. "I'm no thief, little one, and I never tried before to break into a house.
Though I've seen hard times enough."

"Wouldn't you like to see the sun and the moon dance?" asked Elsie. "I think they'll do it this morning, and that'll be pretty soon, won't it? They do in Ireland every Easter morning."

"Who told you that?" "Mamma."

"What's your papa's name?" "Mister William Durant."

The stranger started, and leaning forward peered earnestly into Elsie's face.

"Say that again! Where did you used to live?" he exclaimed.

"Twice up here you was going to see the sun dance, wasn't it?" he asked, and when they were seated together on the church steps he made many inquiries about her, learned that there was in her mind a vague memory of a brother, and that mamma had said he would surely return some time. Presently the bell in the steeple above them struck one, and the stranger tried to persuade the child to return to her house and bed. She persisted in her desire to see the morning dance of sun and moon, but her eyes were heavy, and before she knew it she was fast asleep in the stranger's arms.
He had taken off his coat to shelter her,
and in a corner of the church portico they passed hour after hour of the slow Easter morning.

It was yet some minutes before sunrise when Mrs. Durant was startled from her sleep by a violent knocking at her chamber door.

"Mist' Durant! Mist' Durant! Haste ye up! Elsie's gone!"

Maggie on the way to the earliest of early masses had glanced into Elsie's room. During the few minutes that followed, confusion and anxiety contended for possession of the household. Then Mr. Durant set out to warn the community, and Mrs. Durant, painfully agitated at the thought of losing another child, began to search the neighborhood.
She went by the road that wound about the hill to the church. As she neared the building she saw a man crouching in the portico, and she determined to ask him if he had seen Elsie. He did not see or hear her. She had come quite near when the sound of his voice made her stop stock still with a fearsome faintness about her heart.

"MY CHILDREN!"

"Wake up, Elsie," he said; "the sun is just getting up."

"Is he dancing?" inquired a small, sleepy voice from a bundle in his arms.
"Where is the moon?"

"Elsie! Willie! My children!" cried Mrs. Durant, running forward.

The man, a young and not bad looking fellow, albeit haggard and roughened by experience, rose quickly and said:

"We're here, mother."

And did the sun and the moon really dance that morning? The first rays of the sun fell on a deeply happy group in front of the church, and the pale moon looked on from the other side of the sky.
If they did not dance then it is doubtful if they ever have done so since the first Easter.

Oh, rare as the splendor of lilies,
And sweet as the violet's breath, Comes the jubilant morning of Easter, A triumph of life over death.

For fresh from the earth a young silent bosom
Full laden with flowers we bring,
And scatter them about our hearts,
To carpet a path for our King.

We have grasped through the twilight of sorrow Have tasted the morsel of love, But lie in the arms of the dawn.

Breathes the house of our long silent years
And we, the young and the old, we thought perished Who remained after the storm,
Will return to the light of spring time
To learn our baptism's sign.

Sweet Easter tide glides that evening, Gleams around the earth and soul,
As the city awakes in the morning.
For the sun, the moon, the stars of the earth
And after all partings, remember,
And after all partings, remember,
Oh, here is the hour for our hearts,
To meet our King, our King.

In the morning green shades of the meadow
The daisies of the daffodils a sign
In the morning green shades of the meadow,
The daisies of the daffodils a sign.

The spirit of the sun and the moon
The spirit of the sun and the moon
The spirit of the sun and the moon
The spirit of the sun and the moon.

So down in the spring of life,
The fluttering wings of life,
The fluttering wings of life,
The fluttering wings of life.

For fresh from the earth a young silent bosom
Full laden with flowers we bring,
And scatter them about our hearts,

educates the public faster than to see the infamy of the traffic. Two years hence those countries which are now reaping the bitter fruits of their failure last year will, we have no doubt, inaugurate a series of victories which will make national prohibition certain.

In the course of an article comparing the proposed Hudson's Bay Railway from Manitoba with that projected from Ontario to James' Bay, the Pilot Mound Sentinel gives the following description of the harbor at the end of the Manitoba road: "The harbor at the mouth of the Churchill river, where the Manitoba road will terminate, is one of the finest in the world. At the entrance from the sea the river is less than half a mile wide, but immediately becomes much broader. The water is very deep and is sufficient to float the largest ocean steamer. The entrance to the harbor is between two points of rock, that rise thirty feet above the tide water. These points overlap each other with the open passage between, thus presenting a crooked entrance and opposing a solid wall of rock between the immense harbor and the sea; the rock forming a protecting barrier sufficient to guard shipping from any storm that may be raging outside. It is at the mouth of this river that the ruins of the old fort Prince of Wales may be seen. The fort was established in 1688, just two hundred years ago, and mounted forty guns. In those early days no one supposed there was any difficulty in sailing through the straits, out and in to Hudson's Bay, for there were then no political bars interested in throwing obstacles in the way of commercial enterprise. The effort to remove monopoly by increasing commercial intercourse with the American's has, no doubt, checked for a time the opening of the way from Manitoba by short route to Liverpool. The construction of the eastern railway to James' Bay, by bringing ships there for timber and other traffic will remove much of the prejudice that now exists and perhaps hasten the time when a road will be completed from this province; although in the future as has been the case in the past national interests may continue to be sacrificed for political expediency. Even in the spirit world there are constantly two opposing parties at work, the one inclining to good and the other to evil, and unfortunately the devil often gets the advantage of the good angels."

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE

This institution is in a prosperous condition and is exerting great influence in the locality where it is situated and is fast taking a leading place among the educational forces of the Province. The basis is the co-education of the sexes. One of the most pleasing features of the College is the good being done in temperance and evangelistic work. Bands of young men go out every week to the school houses and churches in the vicinity of the Town and hold meetings which are much appreciated. The Y.M.C.A., which has a room in the College, is the centre for a great many societies, the object of which is social improvement. A wonderful change has taken place in temperance sentiment, and the probability is the local option act will be passed in a few months. Whatever is done in this direction will have great effect on Temperance work throughout the Province and ultimately on the Provinces to the West.

C. D. Zwingle, Iowa, writes: Traps will not exterminate these pests, but I can kill 500 gophers with a 25 cent bottle of strychnine, thus: Cut a common sized potato into about three pieces; raise a thin slice on the cut side, drop in a few grains of the poison; let the slice fall back. Fill an old can with these, take a spade, dig down between the last two or three fresh mounds until you come upon the gopher's path, toss a piece of the potato as far back as you can, and cover up the place so as to exclude the light and at the same time leave the path clear of any obstruction. If this is done according to instructions, you will kill 99 gophers out of 100. In a few days after you may go over the ground, and if you see any fresh mounds, "gopher" him again. In this way I believe I can send to the happy land all the gophers in a township in ten days.—The Orange Judd Farmer.

Stanley's account of his expedition for the relief of Emin Bey is one long story of extreme hardship and peril, of danger of death from starvation, disease, war, extreme heat, and by all sorts of accidents, and shows of what steep step successful African explorers need to be made. It must always be remembered that this story is not a new one of his return to Emin Bey, but of his first expedition concerning which the general features were long ago made known by telegraph and by smaller letters. Stanley started for Emin Bey's province from Yambunga on the Aruwi, on the 28th of June, 1887, expecting to reach Emin Bey within ninety days, but it was ten months before he saw Emin Bay on the 23rd of April, 1888. For one hundred and sixty days of that time he had been leading men, accustomed to sun, heat, and open plains, through heavy tropical forests, amidst what must have seemed like never-ending had up with dysentery and fever; he had fought three or four times with native tribes; had been robbed by Arab slaves; had been deserted by one-third of his men, and another third had fallen sick or had died; he had been compelled to erect a fort and a station and leave garrisons commanded by his lieutenants at two places on the last third of his journey, and after himself, reaching the Albert Nyanza lake had to return one-third of the way passed over and bring up his sick, his stores and his boat. At last he met Emin Bey and spent a month with him, but failed to persuade him to return to the coast. Then Stanley set out once more to meet Lieut. Bartolot and the second column of his expedition, but returned nearly the whole distance to Yambunga before he met the column and learned of the death of Lieut. Bartolot and that the stores which he depended on even for change of raiment had been sent down the river on the supposition that he was dead. Taking command of this column, he turned round, ill-clad as he was, and started back by a new route for Lake Nyanza. It is probable that Stanley's object in taking a new route was to make further explorations, which he is passionately fond of doing.—Montreal Witness.

Darwin's theory of the "survival of the fittest" is simply that the weakly die, while the robust and hardy thrive and live. How true this is of all seed growth, and how necessary to sow only that which is suited by nature to live and develop.

D. M. Ferry & Co., the great Seed Growers and Seed Dealers, of Detroit, Michigan, and Windsor, Ontario, supply only the best and purest, raising their own seeds by the most improved methods and with the greatest care, bringing to their business the invaluable aid of more than thirty years' experience. Their Seed Annual for 1888 is a real help to the gardener, and should be in the hands of all who desire to purchase pure and true seeds. "For three years I was unable to work, suffering from an ulcerated stomach. Medical aid having failed, I was told to try Barlock Blood Bitters, of which 7 bottles made a permanent cure. Ex-Governor Hauser, of Montana, who has been on an extended trip east, passed through St. Paul yesterday on his way back to Helena. During his visit east he concluded very satisfactory financial arrangements for the extension of the railway system of Montana.

"It may be asserted as an assured fact," he told a reporter yesterday afternoon, "that the Montana and Canada railway, as it will be called, will be constructed this year. This road is to connect Montana with the coal mines of the Canadian Northwest, owned by the Galt Railway and Navigation company, which are now being operated on a large scale and turning out coal of a superior quality. The Galt company has a narrow-gauge road from Lethbridge, where the mines are situated, for a distance of about eighty miles to Medicine Hat, a divisional point on the Canadian Pacific railway. It is proposed to build a direct line from Medicine Hat to Helena, passing about eighty miles north of Great Falls, and terminating at Helena, which was at one time suggested as the Montana terminus of the road. The line will run across the almost level prairie, presenting few engineering difficulties, so that the work of construction can be pushed rapidly. Sir A. T. Galt, of Montreal, the president of the company, is now in England floating the bonds for the construction of the railroad, and is meeting with great success, as he was formerly financial minister of Canada, and has an intimate acquaintance in the English money centers.

The large exodus which is just now taking place for Manitoba and British Columbia is apt to cause people to think that a considerable decrease of population in this town and district will naturally follow. That this is or will be the case is very doubtful, as the place of those going away is being rapidly taken by others, among the latter being quite a number of returning settlers from Uncle Sam's dominions. Up to the present there have been as many in-comers as out-goers. It is quite possible that the extensive "moving" which is taking place will be for the general good, and that this section of Western Ontario at least will not suffer through loss of population or wealth.—Listowel Ont., Standard.

H. M. S. "Calliope," which escaped from Apia harbor, Samoa, during the hurricane which drove three American and four German ships ashore, did not escape by mere good luck. When her cables parted and she began to drift, her officers and crew managed to bring her out under steam from between the reefs in the teeth of the hurricane, and although much damage was done to the vessel no lives were lost. It is plain that either the "Calliope" was a more manageable vessel than those of the other nations, or her steaming power was greater, or else she was more pluckily or skillfully managed. Superiority there must have been in the vessel or her crew for she seems to have had no disadvantage in point of position or readiness.

And on its purity largely depends the general health. No one is free from danger, and nine-tenths of humanity actually do suffer from one form or other of impure blood. No one remedy has such a wide range of curative power as has Burdock Blood Bitters—that best of all blood purifiers and tonics.

M. utana, the golden—Treasures in her mines of precious metals; wealth in her 4,000,000 head of live stock; profit in her fertile fields, producing a larger yield of crops than any other state or territory; the richest country per inhabitant on earth where prosperity is universal; which has the best paid labor in the world; a balmy winter climate, caused by warm winds from the Pacific. The St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway is the only railroad passing through a continuous agricultural country from St. Paul and Minneapolis to the Rock

Mountains. It runs through the Great Re-creation of 18,000,000 acres of land, free to settlers, in the Milk River Valley. Wood, water, and coal in abundance; no irrigation required. The only thing that distinguishes Great Falls with its 1,000,000 horses per carat: immense coal veins, and surrounding farming country of free labor, through Helena, the capital city and commercial centre of Montana, and Butte, the richest mining city on earth. To St. Paul, Portland, Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Santa Rosa, Oregon, Utah, and California points. Remember this is the only line running dining cars, sleeping cars, and free tourist tickets of its own from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Great Falls, Helena and Butte. It is also the shortest line of the Pacific coast.—The country of tall timber, dominated by Puget Sound, the Mediterranean Sea and the Pacific. Do not forget that the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway is the only line which offers a choice of three routes to the Pacific coast. The choice is between the Puget Sound route, which places passengers en route for Tacoma, Portland and San Francisco can pass through Port Townsend and Seattle. Free coal is shipped free, although without change of car. Between the Puget Sound route and by old or less frequent routes to Seattle and San Francisco. Take the Seattle route.

FRIDAY, APRIL 19 1889.

EASTER EDITION.

We this week issue a special Easter edition of THE PROGRESS.
The illustrations are very fine and the matter most appropriate. We can assure our readers that we are not copying the Regina papers as the plates for the matter were ordered before we found that they proposed to do the same. THE PRO-GRESS has been using the plates of the American Press Association, and the superiority of our matter is acknowledged by those papers that have followed us in the same line.

The True Meaning of Easter.

While to those of the world worldly Lent means a season of retirement for purposes of spring dress making, and Easter the fit occasion chiefly for a new bonnet, and to others the time for a certain holy, and to yet others for the performance of certain church music, yet to the spirit in accord with the spirit of the universe the coming of Easter means all that the coming of the sun does to the earth herself. It is a re-creation, a new life or lease of life, a freshening of all the powers either of the senses or of the soul. But to the devout the Easter season has a mightier message yet, it is to them like the word of God spoken to the listening ear, for it brings not only the message of the resurrection, but the message of the coming of the heavenly visitant to the heart, the full awakening of the heart to the hospitality of holiness, the consciousness, warmer and deeper and more vivid than any other period of the round year, of God within us.

John Bright.

The melancholy message flashed across the ocean: "John Bright is dying," sent a thrill of sadness through all America.
In him a staunch friend of America and freedom passed over to the majority. The service John Bright rendered the United States in our war we must never forget.
In the time of our direst need he, John Stuart Mill and Richard Cobden kept the sentiment of the English common people faithful to the American Union. Through this influence, even when they were suffering from want of work, owing to the stoppage of the cotton mills, the weavers of Manchester gave their sympathy and moral support to the American nation in its struggle for life.

Together, shoulder to shoulder, arm in arm, John Bright and Gladstone have wrought together for human progress during almost two generations. Twice the two great men differed. In the beginning of the American war Gladstone sympathized with the South. He declared that Jefferson Davis had created a nation.
He tried to see his mistake and acknowledged it grandly and graciously.
Once more the two divided in 1885.
This time Gladstone went ahead and declared for Irish home rule in local affairs. There grand old John Bright could not follow. He withdrew quietly from any very active participation in political affairs. But his friendship for Gladstone continued to the end.

Lord Rosbery, the church faced young British nobleman who married a daughter of the Rothschilds, has invented a phrase. He is a member of the new county council of London. He says the council will administer the affairs of London in accordance with a policy of "daring caution." The phrase is a good one, taken in connection with city improvements everywhere. "Daring caution" is just what is wanted.

Yaguina bay, on the Oregon coast, will soon become an important harbor for ships. The government is deepening and improving it.

NORTHWEST LEGISLATION.

Hon. Mr. Dewdney has introduced a bill into Parliament for the consolidation of the Northwest acts, three in number, and also to amend the law regarding the Northwest in several particulars. Mr. Dewdney, who presented the bill, gave his explanation of it. The only amendment that he explained was one which would give the Northwest, after the present legislature is expired, the same control of liquor legislation as is possessed by the provincial legislatures. This is not what the Legislature asked for, nor what the people want. The Northwest memorial asked for a direct vote on the question of Prohibition or license and they were certainly expressing the voice of the people as recorded at the polls when the members were elected. Should the amendments proposed by Mr. Dewdney become law it means that the people of the Northwest will have the license of the nefarious liquor traffic thrust upon them unless they elect a majority of Prohibitionists to the legislature who will not only prohibit the liquor traffic, but will also meet upon its enforcement. To do this will be a most difficult matter.
There will be a variety of considerations that will influence the electors.
Sectional and political influence will be very strong, and then too personal and other matters will swerve the electors. We have just lately had a striking instance of the influences that will work against Prohibition at the Legislative elections.
The Regina Journal is advocating the drawing of political party lines, and just as soon as that takes place electors who would otherwise support Prohibition will fall into their respective party ranks and work their hardest for the party nominee.
Thus Prohibition will be a secondary consideration, and will be left to drift in the old channels to which it has been confined in the eastern provinces. What we want in the Northwest is for Prohibitionists to be true to their principles and support for elective offices none but those who are well known to be Prohibitionists, regardless of the party to which they may belong.
This will give Prohibitionists the balance of power, and if they remain firm, party men will soon give them what they demand. Of course the Government will be condemned by the Opposition press, but we should if the Reform party were in power that they would do anything more for Prohibition.

OH! OH!

The Regina Journal gets right up on its high Reform horse, and in reply to our strictures on its advocacy of drawing party lines at the next elections to the Territorial Assembly, says, in almost the same breath:

"We advocate Reform principles —one of which is Prohibition."

And
"Every plank in the platform of the Liberal Party is a principle dear to the Journal, and if Prohibition is not at present one of these, it does not prevent the Journal from sanding upon it, and advocating it.
When a sufficient number hold the same views as the Journal, Prohibition will be made a Liberal issue."

How does the Journal harmonize the above extracts. We cannot reconcile them, but then we may be obtuse in comprehension. It will be a long time before Prohibition will be made an issue by the Reform party if its members who pretend to be Temperance men subordinate the principle of Prohibition to party ex-pediencies. The Progress has all along contended that Prohibition or license should be the issue at the next Territorial elections, and from what has transpired during the past week at Ottawa it is clear that it will depend entirely upon the result of the next elections to the Legislature as to whether we will have Prohibition or license. It is an easy matter to predict what the Journal will say this week about the amendments to the Territorial Act brought down by Hon. Mr. Dewdney, the Minister of the Interior. The Government is Conservative, and the Journal supports the Opposition, and it will of course condemn the Government, and pretend that it is the champion of Prohibition, while it is subordinate to party. The Montreal Witness and a few other papers with Reform leanings and much more influential than the Regina Journal, strongly condemn the Mowat Government for refusing to enforce the Scott Act, in fact the Witness holds both Dominion and Provincial Governments responsible for the recent Scott Act defeat, for the reason that they both failed to enforce the Act. On this ground the Mowat (Reform) Government is strongly condemned in an article we copy elsewhere.

But then the Journal says Prohibition is a Reform principle; come to think of it so it is, but not one of the so called Reform party, any more than that of the other political party. It will be interesting to watch the Journal's attempts to ride both the straight party and Prohibition horses between now and the next election.

RAILWAY OR REBELLION.

The Prince Albert community is worked up just now to the fever heat by the apparent fact that another session of the Dominion Parliament is nearly over and there are no prospects of their obtaining the much desired railway communication with the outside world in the near future. Meetings have been held and strong resolutions passed and wired to Ottawa, and every possible influence is being brought to bear upon the Government to help them in their extremity. We are informed on good authority that the C. P. R. were prepared to take over the Regina and Long Lake road if the Government would give them the right to charge six cents per mile on passenger traffic for twenty years, and construct it through to the Saskatchewan this summer.
This the Government very properly declined to do, and the arrangement fell through. The prospects of the Prince Albert people are rather gloomy at present.

THE SAFE PLAN.

When suffering from a troublesome cold, a hacking cough, hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis, or other forms of throat or lung troubles, is to use Hag-yard's Pectoral Balsam to loosen the phlegm and soothe and heal the inflamed mucous surfaces. It cures where others fail.

From R. Dunlop Strong, advocate, re legal opinion on herd by-law.

From G. S. Davidson re unpaid claim due for the construction of side walk on west side of Qu'Appelle street in the town of Qu'Appelle.

The Finance committee reported with regard to A. W. Struthers re assessment, date 18th January, 1889, we would recommend that the clerk be instructed to write him and say that the assessment for 1888 cannot be altered. The N. E. 1, 26-17-15 is properly assessed and Mr. Wm. Downing must pay the taxes. The sum of $71.35 remitted by Mr. Stevenson, in respect of E. 1, 6-18-24, should be carried forward to the different rates of which the same are made up. We would recommend that the sum of $54.50 be paid to Mr. McLane for his salary to the end of March, that the treasurer reports that there is $2583.08 on hand, that a cheque be drawn in favor of A. M. McLane for $24 for rent of hall for Council for 1884. With regard to statement from collector enclosing amounts received being only a portion of taxes, collector must produce letters sent with same to show how the amounts are made up and in respect of what the deductions are made, that a cheque for $75 be drawn in favor of J. C. Starr for his salary as collector. The letters from Osler, Hammond & Nanton re assessment of Ontario & Qu'Appelle Land Co's land should be handed by clerk to assessor and instructions given to him in reference to same, also that the sum of $7.50 be paid J. Robinson, it being the lowest, viz, $68 and the work being done we would recommend that a cheque be drawn in his favor for that amount, also that C. M. Spry be allowed to perform last year's statute labor this year.

The above report was received and adopted.

Couns. Ross gave notice that at the next meeting of the council he would introduce a by-law amending pound keepers by-law.

Couns. Fraser, Cates and Smith were appointed a committee to enquire into the best means of exterminating the gopher.

Redpath-Smith—That in the opinion of this council it will be beneficial to the district to have an Immigration Agent visit Ontario this spring and induce immigrants to settle here. The C.P.R. having granted passes for immigrant agents from here east as far as Montreal, be it resolved that a grant of $140 be made towards the expenses of Mr. A. M. McLane as such agent and for printing in relation to the scheme. Carried unanimously.

Redpath-Fraser—That the council of the municipality of South Qu'Appelle have heard with surprise of the intention of the Government to close the immigration buildings here. The season here last year having been a very prosperous one, has drawn the attention of intending immigrants to this district and the council feeling the necessity of making every effort to obtain settlers in this district, appointed an agent to visit Great Britain and Ireland and Europe to induce settlers to come here. Besides this the member of the Legislative Assembly has nominated one party and the Board of Trade two other persons to travel in Ontario under passes provided by the C.P.R. to induce people to come here. This district having come to some expense in the matter from which great benefits are expected. Be it resolved that the Minister of Agriculture be respectfully requested to continue the Immigration Agency at Qu'Appelle, these being the only immigration buildings in Assiniboia, and it is further resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Hon. John Carling, Minister of Agriculture, and the Hon. E. Denehy, Minister of Interior, Carried.

The chairman and clerk were authorized to draw cheques in favor of A. M. McLane, salary up to end of March, $54.50; A. M. McLane, hall hire, $24; J. C. Starr, salary as collector, $75; Bank of Montreal interest on mill debentures, $582.

On a ballot being taken for assessor, J. B. North was selected.

Cates-Murphy—That the chairman and clerk sign a cheque for $68, being amount of contract for building sidewalk across North Pacific street, in favor of J. B. Robinson. Carried.

Cates-Fraser—That a cheque be drawn in favor of the Finance committee for $140 for expenses in regard to immigration. Carried.

The following by-laws received their several readings and passed:

By-law appointing assessor.

By-law amending by-law No 54.

Redpath-Smith—That the members of this council tender their hearty congratulations to their fellow member, Mr. G. B. Murphy, on the occasion of his marriage, and take this, the earliest opportunity to offer him their best wishes, and trust that he may have a long, happy and prosperous married life. Carried unanimously.

Council adjourned.

Newsy Notes.

The Week's News Boiled down for Progress Readers.

Two thousand immigrants left Liverpool Saturday for America, making a total of 42,600 who have sailed from that place during the past week.

Sir John Macdonald has given notice of a resolution to ask the Imperial Government to make the boundary of Ontario, Albany river, the same as that decided by arbitration.

The lords of the Admiralty have granted an interview with McLeod Stewart, president of the Canadian Anthracite Coal company, regarding the use of Cardiff coal for the Pacific squadron in lieu of Welsh coal. The Admiralty are arranging for a test of the fitness of the coal, and Mr. Stewart expects favorable results.

John Albert Bright, the Liberal Unionist candidate, was to-day elected to succeed his father, the late John Bright, as representative of the central division of Birmingham in Parliament. Mr. Bright received 5,640 votes against 2,560 votes for Wm. C. Beale, the Gladstonian nominee. At the last election John Bright was elected by acclamation.

A large number of documents and newspaper articles, amounting to a thousand, connected with the case of Boulanger, will be examined by a committee composed of Merlin, Gaudet and DeMeule. The general is charged with corrupting the army, malversation while minister of war, and with making seditious speeches regarding President Carnot's election.

A CURE FOR LUMBAGO.

That painful complaint can be quickly cured by the right remedy. Miss Mary Jane Gould, of Stony Creek, Ont., says: "I was troubled with lumbago, and could not get relief until I used Hazyard's Yellow Oil, one bottle of which cured me entirely."

Satisfactory arrangements have now been completed, subject to the approval of Parliament, for the construction of the Alberta & North-western railway. It is understood that the Government will offer a land subsidy of ten thousand acres per mile. This is a larger amount than has been previously given to any Northwest railway, but in view of the assurances that the promoters are prepared forthwith to go ahead with the construction, and the increased land grant is conditional on the speedy completion of the road in the interests of the country, it has been deemed advisable to make this concession.

FATHER HAD QUINSY.

We find Burdock Blood Bitters excellent for weakness, and equally so for headache. Father also suffered severely from quinsy, which B. B. B., by its tonic and purifying properties, completely cured.

Old Black Notes. The oldest bank notes are the "flying money" or "convenient money" first issued in China, 209 B.C. Originally these notes were made of silk, but later of paper. They indicated a change to the banks under government inspection and control. A writer in a provincial paper says that the early Chinese government notes were all essentially similar to be modern bank notes, bearing the name of the bank, the bank's location, the amount of the bank's signature, the official sealing, and the representation of its value in figures, in words and in the pictorial representation in terms of weight of coins equal in amount to the face value, and a notation of the value and penalties for counterfeiting. These and almost all other bank notes were made of paper and were made of paper and were made of paper.

QU'APPELLE.

—Good Friday.
—Next Sunday is Easter.
—What seedling drawing to a close.
—The weather has been most favorable for spring work.
—Mr. W. T. Thompson, D. L. S., is plastering and repairing his house on Caswell street.
—The frame for Mr. S. H. Caswell's creamery has been raised and is being rapidly closed in.
—Mr. H. A. Axford has returned from Prince Albert. He reports the railway excitement as intense.
—It is known that Gabriel Dumont passed through here last week and is now among his people at Batoche.
—Mr. G. H. V. Bulyea is preparing to live on his homestead about two miles out of town for the summer.
—We are pleased to be able to state that Mr. R. Dundas Strong is convalescent, and will soon be able to attend to business.
—His Lordship the Bishop of Qu'Appelle returned on Friday morning last from England, where he was very successful in his mission.

—The adjourned meeting of the Qu'Appelle Liberal Conservative Association will be held on Tuesday, May 7th, in McLane's hall.

—A meeting of the directors of the South Qu'Appelle Agricultural Society will be held on Saturday, the 20th inst., at 14 o'clock, in the Queen's hall.

—Messrs. McIntosh Bros., late of the Grand Pacific Hotel, Winnipeg, have taken the Queen's hotel and are now in possession. They are experienced hotel men, and no doubt will be a good house.

—The usual Anglican Good Friday services will be held today in St. Peter's church, and the usual Easter services on Sunday. We would have been glad to have published their order and hours had they been handed in to us.

—Hot cross buns at Mr. A. McKenzie's bakery.

—As yet we have received no mail by Wednesday's C. P. R. trains, though it has been stated repeatedly that such would be the case.

—Lost on Wednesday last, between McKenzie's bakery and Bulyea's store, a Ten Dollar Bill. The finder will confer a favor on the owner by leaving it at THE PROGRESS office.

—Mr. N. Lindsay, B. A., from Knox College, Toronto, has been sent to take charge of the Presbyterian congregation here for the summer. He comes well recommended. Service next Sunday evening at 19 o'clock.

—The brass band turned out on Monday evening last, marched to the green off Walsh street and played a number of tunes in a very superior manner. The training of Mr. St. Louis is rapidly bringing the band up to a high state of musical proficiency.

—A vestry meeting will be held in the vestry of St. Peter's church on Monday, the 22nd inst., at 10 o'clock to receive the churchwardens report and accounts for the past year and for the election of churchwardens and sidesmen and two lay delegates to the Synod for the ensuing year.

—At the Queen's: N. Lindsay, B. A., Toronto; J. C. Wood, Fort Qu'Appelle; W. Gilroy, Regina; J. Elliott, W. Eynon, H. Macpherson, Thos. Blackwood, R. S. Norton, H. McIntosh, A. McIntosh, Miss M. McIntosh, Miss A. McIntosh, Winnipeg; Jas. Taylor, Guelph; Samuel Murray, Chas. McDonald, Parklands; S. J. Egan, Moosomin; C. C. McKay, Ellsboro; W. Shaw, London, Eng; W. Anderson, D. McIntosh, George Thompson, Indian Head.

—The examinations for the Regina District of the Methodist church are now being held here and conducted by the chairman of the District, Rev. Alfred Andrews. Those present: Rev. A. Woolley, of Waseana, who is writing on the 2nd year's work; Rev. J. W. Kidd, of Grenfell, who is taking the first year's papers; and Rev. R. Halsall of Wolsley, is writing for both preliminary and first year's certificate. It will be some time before the results of the examinations can be known.

—On Tuesday night Mr. Jas. Fair lost a very valuable heifer by poisoning or obstruction. Mr. Fair opened her and on examining the contents of the stomach, etc., found that she had eaten a large quantity of leaf lead, that usually encloses caddies of tea. Mr. Fair has been most unfortunate during the past year, having lost about $200 worth of stock from a variety of causes. In order to prevent the leaf lead from being left lying round, Mr. A. N. Wismer offers to purchase it. Here is a chance for the boys to obtain pocket money.

—At the Leland: Jno. D. Roberts, Le n Labonde and wife, J. Ames Levy, J. Arbuthnot, J. B. Curran, Thos. Blackwood, H. Inman, J. W. Dain, Winnipeg; A. R. Cathbert and wife, G. S. Davidson, Prince Albert; J. Linden, A. Elliott, Wolsley; Capt. J. M. Smith, Birds Hill; Chas. Burley, Portage la Prairie; Arthur Pears, Victoria; Capt. Julius Dougall, Duck Lake; Ed. Barratt, Brandon; C. J. Tutthill, Toronto; H. Simpson, St. Paul; G. A. Graham, W. Sutherland, M.T.L., and wife, Fort Qu'Appelle; R. Rev. Adalbert, Bishop of Qu'Appelle; M. Cass, Montreal.

—Mr. F. A. Hurd, manager of "Eastview" Stock Farm, Cookshire, Que., is now on his way to the North-West with two cars of thoroughbred Aberdeen (Polled) Angus bulls (one and two year olds) from the celebrated herd of the late Hon. J. B. Pope's stock farm, "Eastview," Cookshire, Que. They are all pedigree animals of the finest strains of this celebrated blood. Mr. Hurd will stop his animals in Qu'Appelle for two days, and will be glad to sell to the farmers in this vicinity. This will be a rare chance for farmers to secure first-class breeding animals at prices that are right. He will arrive about the end of the present month.

—On Saturday last the residence of our esteemed friend, Mr. C. E. Cullen, was totally destroyed by fire. The metal floor caught and the flames communicated with the wooden roof which was dry as tinder. Being isolated and without assistance Mr. and Mrs. Cullen were only able to save a few articles of clothing and other things easily moved in a short time, for in ten minutes after the fire was discovered the building could not be entered. It is difficult to estimate Mr. Cullen's loss as he had a valuable library of about 350 volumes, besides many curios and mementoes of his trips to Eastern Europe, Asia and Africa. He has the sympathy of his numerous friends.

—On Friday last a very pleasing incident took place in St. Peter's church, the pro-cathedral of the Diocese. After the shortened evening service, which was the first service the Bishop attended after his arrival from the old country the Rev. W. G. Lyon, who has been vicar here during the last nine months, presented the Bishop, on behalf of the clergy and laity of the diocese, with a Pastoral Staff. In doing so he briefly stated that the members of the church in the diocese were anxious to show their appreciation of the earnest way in which the Bishop carried on the work of the diocese and of the unceasing manner in which he had labored during his visit to England to obtain funds to carry on the work. The Bishop in reply most sincerely thanked the donors for the very appropriate gift and assured them that it would always lead him to all in his power to work for the spiritual welfare of those committed to his charge in this great and important diocese. He then pronounced the blessing, holding the staff in his left hand and on the clergy and choir leaving the church it was born before him by the Rev. W. G. Lyon, acting as Bishop's chaplain. Besides the Rev. W. G. Lyon and Rev. W. H. Green, the Rev. J. W. Gregory, P. K. Lyon, and H. LeJeune were present at the service. In presenting the Staff Revs. W. G. Lyon and J. W. Gregory represented the clergy and Messrs. Leslie Gordon and J. H. Boyce the laity. The church was full on the occasion. The Staff, which was purchased in England, is made of ebony mounted with a lyer and precious stones and the funds to purchase the same were raised by voluntary subscription in the diocese.

MOOSOMIN.

—Farmers are pretty generally through with wheat sowing.

—Messrs. Hogg and Baugh arrived today from British Columbia with two cars of horses.

—Mr. El. Wier, a young man from Montana, who has been here with a band of ponies since last fall, while breaking a pony a few days ago, was knocked senseless by the pony falling upon him, and has been in a critical condition since, suffering from concussion of the brain.

—In the election of mayor and councillors on Saturday, Mr. Joseph Daniel, postmaster, was elected mayor, and the following citizens as councillors: W. H. Manson, F. F. Forbes, L. D. Keown, J. White, N. G. McCann, J. C. McArthur. The first meeting of the council takes place on Saturday, 20th inst.

—Saturday afternoon, with the wind blowing a gale, a prairie fire struck in on the town site in the east end, and only by the persistent efforts of a large number of citizens and a few of the mounted police, it was checked and prevented from entering the town. Tonight quite a demonstration is in progress, the brass band is out with torches, surrounding the newly-elected civic officers, and the infant town presents a lively appearance.

A FRIGHTENED MOTHER.

"My little girl, 4 years old, frightened me one night by a cry, 'I gave her a dose of Hays's Yellow O.I., which relieved her at once, and she slept well all night. I have since used it in several cases of croup, colds, etc., and find it always reliable.'" Mrs. Eva Bradley, Visdon, Man.

WAPPELLA.

—Twelve families of Russian Jews have been homesteaded north of here during last week.

—A petition, numerously signed, is to be sent to Commissioner Herchmer, asking for police to be stationed here.

—On Thursday last T. J. Smith, druggist, was charged before Messrs. Logan, Blake and Butler with violent assault on William Schradt, farmer. The complainant, whose head is badly cut, was not able to appear. The accused was remanded for a week. Bail refused.
